

In the Claims

Please amend the claims as follows

Cancel Claims 1.2, 4

3. A [method of] computer system executing code for enterprise and/or division wide risk management method that expresses risks to company assets in [common currency] the currency of the asset, where risk is a potential change in asset value of in many or all significant assets of the company, comprising:

- a) means of analyzing a company's transactions creating or modifying company assets and their corresponding effect on a company's assets and expressing that risk in [common currency] the currency of the asset;
- b) means of determining the flow of a company's computer-based transactions creating or modifying company assets and ranking them by risk expressed in [common currency] the currency of the company's assets.

Reply to Examiner's Comments - Claim Objections

Informalities have been corrected to claim a system and add the semi-colon.

Reply to Examiner's Comments - 35 § 101

Computer system added to act on the code imparting functionality.

Reply to Examiner's Comments - 35 § 112

The claim has been corrected to be definite in defining the invention as a system for determining risks to a company based on the assets of a company and where risk is then measured as the potential change in value to those